SACRAMENTO – Executive Director of the California Biomass Energy Alliance (CBEA), Julee Malinowski-Ball, issued the following statement after passage of Senate Bill 32.

“CBEA applauds the Legislature and the Governor for their work to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. California has always been a leader in protecting the environment and today's actions bolster that position.

“SB 32 expands on California’s greenhouse gas emission efforts by calling for emissions to be reduced by 40 percent less of 1990 emission levels by 2020. This will help protect the environment and ensures that this generation and the next generation will have clean air to breath.

“The biomass industry will continue to be an essential tool in reducing greenhouse by providing clean, green renewable energy.”
